

Pupil Perceptions:

Understand your pupils' wellbeing and readiness to learn

Get vital insights into wellbeing and identify barriers to learning

Pupil Perceptions is a simple online wellbeing survey taken by pupils. It gives schools a clearer picture of the barriers to learning that individuals and groups face, allowing them to make informed decisions on extra support.

- Understand more about your pupils' mental health
- Identify the issues affecting pupils' ability to learn
- Pick up important safeguarding issues
- Prepare self-evaluation evidence for Ofsted
- Plan and implement targeted interventions

The tried-and-tested Pupil Perceptions system provides a Readiness for Learning score which can be used at both an individual and group level. With this knowledge, schools can quickly build up a detailed picture of vulnerable groups, the problems that they face, how they have been affected by Covid-19 and how targeted interventions could help.

At the Park Academies Trust, we have used Pupil Perceptions to screen all students' views of their own mental health and wellbeing. This has enabled us to tailor the curriculum according to particular needs that have arisen in the community.

It has also allowed us to direct targeted interventions appropriately, such as counselling services and mental health provision, to individuals, based on their self-identified levels of need.

During the 2020 Covid-19 lockdowns, students were able to complete the survey from wherever they were learning (at home or at school), and we were able to use the Readiness for Learning (RfL) scores to identify and risk-assess students who required extra pastoral support while at home.
